

Located inside the historic Mary C. O'Keefe Cultural Center of Art and Education, the Scharr-Ello Studio is 525 square feet of recording and mixing space acoustically designed for today's recording artist.

The studio is a full service professional recording environment available to the community to record artists of all walks of life.

Singers, musicians, bands, and even students can now record their album, demo or solo project locally in historic Ocean Springs.

The main studio room has an open window design with high ceilings and features a piano and drum set for the artist's use as well as an elevator to bring in gear and instruments.

The studio also features a sound proof vocal booth for recording vocals in a sound dampened environment.

The control room is state of the art digital and features a Macintosh computer system running Logic Pro software for virtually unlimited tracks of recording and mixing.
